Car Wash UK

Have you ever been in your vehicle having it cleaned by an automatic car wash and thought - what is controlling this as all you have seen is the attendant push the start button? The answer is that there is usually a PLC (Programmable Logic Controller) at the heart of the control system, which by means of relays ensures that all the machine operations are initiated in the correct order. Whilst the PLC and relay modules are built to industrial standards from time to time they do fail and require repair. Mercom has the in-house expertise to perform these repairs and carries out this work for Car Wash UK one of the leading sales and service companies in the UK specializing in Automatic Car Wash machines.

Car Wash UK Ltd was originally formed in 1993 as the first company to offer maintenance for all makes of car wash machines. In addition they sell automatic washing machines for not only cars but also trucks, buses, trams and train as well as specialized systems.

Did you know: Mercom will celebrate their Silver Jubilee in 2007 having been founded in 1982 and currently employing over 120 full time engineers.

Need ideas for a Christmas present?

Over the last twelve months Mercom have seen continued growth with their internet sales of A-grade refurbished TFT displays.

The full range is available to view online at Mercom's ebay shop – simply visit www.mercom.org/sales and click on the ebay link.

With prices starting from as little as £47 for a 14" display and a typical 17" display selling for £100 fully inclusive of delivery and VAT, the stock is moving quickly off the shelves as Christmas rapidly approaches.

All displays carry a full twelve month return-to-base warranty and are shipped in new plain packaging.

The ongoing success of the TFT sales has added another division to Mercom's long established CRT, TFT and printer repair department.
